

Emily looks forward to supporting the management of our local park land and making sure community voices are heard in the stewardship of this fantastic resource. An anthropologist and a writer, she previously worked as a cultural landscape historian for the National Park Service. Her work in anthropology focuses on heritage, working landscapes and resource management. She has enjoyed spending time in Montpelier's parks for over a decade, regardless of the season, and she and her family (husband, two kids, dog and six chickens) are all great lovers of the outdoors!
